CALL FOR PAPERS

The VIII International Conference of the Phrasis Association aims at bringing together researchers and scholars who investigate phraseological and paremiological units, in order to compare traditional and innovative theoretical models and to further the knowledge of the current dynamics of phraseological studies. We will reflect on the modeling of phraseological and paremiological units in both the standard languages and in specialized languages, on their semantic and morphosyntactic properties, on their presence in various types of speech, on how they are taught and learnt in a foreign language, on the problems related to their translation, and finally on their variation / evolution across time and space. Attention will also be given to the lexicographic representation of complex units and to the new perspectives that corpus linguistics opens up with regard to their extraction and description. The Conference will thus present state of the art research at both national and international level, in continuity with what has been discussed in previous editions.

Topic and themes will include, but are not limited to:

- phraseology and paremiology: classification problems
- phraseology, paremiology and diachronic / diatopic variation
- phraseology, paremiology and corpus linguistics
- phraseology, paremiology and terminology
- phraseology and paremiology and discourse analysis
- phraseology, paremiology and contrastive studies
- phraseology, paremiology and translation
- phraseology, paremiology and specialized languages
- phraseography and paremiography
- phraseology, paremiology and language teaching / learning
- phraseology, paremiology and new technologies

Communications may be presented in one of the following languages:

- Catalan
- English
- French
- German
- Italian
- Portuguese
- Russian
- Spanish
